A ROUND OF TALK.

The Country Road.

From the busy fields of farmer folk
It starts on its winding way,
Goes over the hill, and across the brook,
Where the minnows love to play;
Then, past the mill with its water-wheel,
And the pond that shows the sky;
And up to the bridge by the village store,
And the church, with its spire so high.

You never would think that the country road,
From the hill to the store, could be
So long to a boy with an errand to do
And another boy to see.
You never could dream how short it is
From the farm to the frozen pond,
Nor how very much farther it always is
To the school-house just beyond.

Oh, the country road! at the farther end
It runs up hill and down,
Away from the woods and the rippling brook,
To the lolling, rushing, town.
But, best of all, when you're tired and sick
Of the noisy haunts of men,
If you follow it back, it will lead you home
To the woods and fields again.

—St Nicholas.

GOOD RACE—The race made by nominee R. L. Durham especially in this county at the recent Democratic primary was a good one under the circumstances. Mr. Durham until the campaign for the nomination for Commonwealths Attorney opened was almost wholly unknown to the voters of Washington county and yet so vigorous was the fight made by him and his friends that he came out victorious by a majority of about 500 over his two opponents who are both good men with a strong following and some good influential friends who worked hard for them. Mr. Durham had on his side in this race however some of the best party workers in the county and his handsome vote was due in a large measure to their untiring efforts in his behalf.

NOT APPRECIATIVE.—If one were to judge by the size of the audience which greeted Mrs Lulu Tyler Gates at the Opera House the natural conclusion would be that the Springfield people are decidedly lacking in appreciation of genuine merit in a public performer. Mrs. Gates is an artist of the highest class in her line, and we must say on behalf of the few who ventured out to hear her that her work was greatly appreciated, and the se who stayed away because they were afraid of not getting their money's worth, or for some other reason, missed a treat. The amusement-going public of this town is uncertain when it comes to amusement, anyway, except when a cheap minsurel show or one of those rip-roaring forces with plenty of noise and horse-play comes along, and then full houses can be counted on as a certainty. The local public however, is shy of lecturers and elocutionists and thereby many good things are missed,

SCHOOL—The announcement has been made so often that work would begin immediately on the new graded school building that the public may have become a little incredulous, but we have it from good authority that the contractor for the foundation work will be here this week to [illegible] Mr W. L. Mc- [illegible] to the brick [illegible] shine in [illegible] and [illegible] hand [illegible] ex- [illegible] ilding [illegible]

what business there is to be transacted will have to be completed this week as the term at Greensburg begins next Monday Litigation in Washington county is light, which may or may not speak well for the community. If the court business in the other counties of the district is no heavier than here the four terms per year could very well be reduced to two and at that there would be no great rush for the lawyers.

FAIR—The catalogues of the Springfield Fair have just been printed and made ready for distribution. The catalague is larger than ever this year made so no only by the additions to the premium list but also on account of the large number of advertisers demanding space in it. The indications are that the fair this year will be better than ever before The officers of the fair company have added a considerable amount of money to the premium list and some new features have been added. If the present crop season winds up as favorable as it starts out, so as to put the farmers and stock men in a good humor, the chances are that the county fair will be a success all around.

CAUTION

This is a gentle word—but when you think how many people are apt to purchase the only remedy universally known and a remedy that has had the largest sale of any medicine in the world since 1868 for the cure and treatment of Consumption and Throat and Lung troubles with out losing its great popularity all these years, you will be thankful we called your attention to Bo-chee's German Syrup. There are so many ordinary cough remedies made by druggists and others that are cheap and good for light colds, perhaps, but for severe Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup—and especially for Consumption, where there is difficult expectoration and coughing during the nights and mornings, there is nothing like German Syrup, The 25 cent size has just been introduced this year Regular size 75 cents. At all druggists. C. J. Haydon

When you have Dr. Classe's German Penetrating Liniment in the house you have a reliable article that you can depend on; one that will do all that is expected of a good liniment Sold by Wood & Campbell.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are just what you need when you have no appetite, feel dull after eating, and wake up with a bad taste in your mouth. They will improve your appetite, cleanse and invigorate your stomach, and give you a relish for your food. For sale by Haydon's drug store.

Arrested For Counterfeiting.

A special from Hot Springs, Ark., says: What seems to be an important catch was made here today in the arrest of Wm. Brooks and his wife and the capture of a complete set of dies and $50,000 in spurious five dollar national bank notes on the Marion National Bank, of Lebanon, Ky. The money was of the 1882 series, signed John B. Carlisle, Vice President, and O. D. Thomas, Assistant Cashier. It was the Garfield note and seems to be remarkably clever. The issue is of May 26, 1904.

When Deputy Sheriff Will Estell detected Brooks in the act of passing one of the bills he promptly arrested him, and after a short struggle relieved him of a large pistol. In his pocket was a letter from the Seventh Avenue Hotel, Louisville, addressed to Wm. Brooks, care of [illegible] Hotel, 310 Park

The couple were to have left town this evening, but Brooks came down town and began drinking. His wife knew he was drinking and was greatly annoyed over the fact. She is about twenty years old, and says they have been married five weeks. She is completely prostrated in the city jail, while her husband is in the county jail swearing vengeance against the officers. It is known that at least five others are implicated with the pair.

Worst Of All Experiences.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. H. Newson, Decatur, Ala., "For three years," she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered." For Liver, Kidney, Stomach and Bowel troubles Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. It's guaranteed by C. J. Haydon Druggist

"I have been troubled for some time with indigestion and sour stomach," says Mrs. Sarah W. Coffin, of Lee, Mass., "and have been taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets which have helped me very much so that now I can eat many things that before I could not." If you have any trouble with your stomach why not take these Tablets and get well? For sale by Haydon's drug store.

Wades In Water Neck Deep.

After the heavy rainfall on Wednesday night of last week W. R. Routt whose home is on the banks of the quiet little stream on Barren Run, had an experience that he will long remember. He awoke in the night and found the creek higher than it had ever come before. He saw that his family must be moved out to higher ground, and he at once took his wife up in his arms to carry her to the barn. His wife had been dangerously sick for several days and had to be carried. The water on this trip went up to Mr Routt's waist. Returning to his house after his children he gathered them up and waded to the barn again, and notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Routt is the tallest man in the county, the water that time was up to his neck

It was expected that Mrs. Routt's condition would be considerably worse after the trying trip through the water, but on the contrary the next night, after being brought to the house, she rested considerably better than usual and was not injured at all.

Mr. Routt's farm as well as many others in the creek bottoms, were badly washed and the crops seriously injured.—Larue Co. Herald.

From The Enterprise.

Patrick Mudd, aged about 60, died at Elizabeth Hospital Tuesday morning after a lingering illness. Mr Mudd was a sufferer of Bright's disease for many years. About two weeks ago he moved from his farm in the Caney Creek neighborhood to hospital where he was given every attention.

Last week the crowd in town on account of the Street Fair was fairly large. On Saturday the attendance which was very large was due mainly to the conventions and to the Decoration services. The order during the week was good for which great credit is due to our excellent police force and to their assistants. Outside of a few "plain drunks," the record is blank.

Died at the Cleaver House, Sunday afternoon May 31, 1903, Antoinette, aged 8 months, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs C. B. Cleaver, of this city, after a brief illness. Funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon by Rev. W. W. Stoddart, after which the remains of the dear little one were taken to Ryder cemetery for interment. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Cleaver extend most heartfelt sympathy.

Monday County Court day was lightly attended, Sales were light The livery stable outfit of R. B Lankford, assigned, was sold by assignee Owen Thomas, with Joseph Estes as auctioneer. The proceeds of the sale were between $500 and $600. Mike Mackin bought on the streets two sows and 13 pigs for $12 25. Cattle appearances were light and the market for same dull. Farmers generally were feeling good on account of the good rains of the past week.

Do you get up in the morning with a pain in your back? Are you restless in your sleep? Do you have to rise during the night; do you feel careworn and dull—no life or energy. If so, you should lose no time in procuring Gay-na. It is just the remedy you need and one that will give you relief. Sold by Wood & Campbell.

Ladies And Children Invited.

All ladies and children who cannot stand the shocking strain of laxative syrups, cathartics, etc, are invited to try the famous Little Early Risers, They are different from all other pills. They do not purge the system. Even a double dose will not gripe, weaken or sicken; many people call them the Easy Pill. W. H Howell, Houston, Tex., says nothing better can be used for constipation, sick headache, etc. Bob Moore, Lafayette, Ind., says all others gripe and sicken, while DeWitt's Little Early Risers do their work well and easy. Sold by C. J Haydon.

Crittenden Of Kentucky.

May 30, the day set apart to honor the memory of America's fallen heroes, is the anniversary of the birth of William Logan Crittenden, a member of one of the oldest and most distinguished families of Kentucky, whose love of danger and reckless daring led to his untimely death at the hands of the Spanish authorities in Cuba.

William Logan Crittenden was the son of Henry Crittenden, a planter and member of Kentucky Legislature; brother of Thomas T. Crittenden, a Governor of Missouri; nephew of John J. Crittenden United States Attorney General and a Governor of Kentucky, and cousin of George Bibb Crittenden, a famous General in the Confederate army. He was born eighty years ago in Shelby county, Ky., and was a graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point in the class of 1845. He served throughout the Mexican war, becoming First Lieutenant at its close, and resigned from the United States army in 1851 to join the second filibustering expedition of Narcisco Lopez to the island of Cuba. Upon landing Lopez divided his forces, and left about one hundred of them behind under the command of Col. Crittenden, while with the others he marched into the interior Lopez was deceived in expecting the assistance of the native Cubans; he was attacked by a heavy force of Spaniards, and after a desperate struggle he was captured and was executed by the garrote a few days afterward.

Col Crittenden made a forced march to Lopez's assistance but was intercepted by a large force of Spaniards, and was driven back to the coast of Cuba. Upon attempting to return to the United States he was captured by a Spanish war vessel and taken to Havana, where he was given a quick trial, and shot with the surviving members of his command August 16, 1851. He was told to kneel with his back to the firing squad, according to the Spanish custom, but he answered bravely: "An American knees only to his God," and he met his death standing firm and erect, with his face to the Spanish soldiers.

With Barlow Knife

Ben Patterson and John Patterson, of the Dixville vicinity, are cousins, but they do not dwell in the blissful harmony that cousins should. For a long time they have been at enmity and friends of both have known that sooner or later they would meet and settle their differences. The opportunity was afforded them Sunday when they met at Benton church, where services were in progress.

The cause of the trouble was the terminus of a difficulty several years ago between some other members of the Patterson relation, and the two cousins had ever since that time permitted hatred to languish in their hearts. They had had some words about the matter previous to their meeting Sunday, but each had succeeded in keeping out of the path of the other. Ben Patterson, who arrived at the church first, was standing talking to some friends when John rode up and alighted from his horse. They exchanged a few words and then clinched and fell to the ground, and a fierce struggle followed first one being on top and then the other. During the scuffle a son of John Patterson appeared upon the scene, and pulling a Barlow knife from his pocket stabbed Ben in the back several times Bystanders interfered and separated the belligerents before any further damage was done. Ben was right painfully injured, but his wounds are not considered of a dangerous nature.

Both men are prominent in the vicinity and the unfortunate affair of Sunday is very much regretted by all. As yet no arrests have been made.—Harrodsburg Democrat.

Augustus E. Wilson opened his campaign for the Republican nomination for governor with a speech in Louisville Tuesday night Ex-Gov. W. O. Bradley was present and made a strong speech endorsing Mr. Wilson as the logical candidate. The report has been circulated that some Louisville Republicans have urged Hon. John W. Yerkes to use his influence to get Mr. Wilson to withdraw from the race in favor of Col. Belknap but Yerkes denies that he has been so requested. The contest between Belknap and Wilson which is centered in the city of Louisville promises to be spirited. In the meantime the Hon. Cliff on J. Pratt is skirmishing around out in the State and may show up at the convention with as many votes as either of the other two gentlemen.

It was thought that the worst was over in the flood situation in the West but Tue day a sudden and unexplained turn came at St. Louis when the receding waters again began to rise and reached a stage of 37.5 feet, the highest mark in the city's history. A rapid fall of the water is expected to follow. A special session of the Kansas Legislature to pass on relief bills for the flood sufferers will probably be called. The full damage from the flood in Topeka is just being realized and early estimates of losses are said to have been none too high.

There is great interest in the Jackson county trouble and the soldiers and newspaper reporters are still on the ground and manage to keep things lively. A jury composed of citizens of McGoffin county has been selected to try the case against Jett and White for the murder of Marcum, and the trial is proceeding.

President Roosevelt has returned to Washington after his western tour during which he received ovations from the peo at every stopping place.

There are late encouraging signs to the effect that one of the sites about Louisville may be selected as an army post

His Last Hope Realized.

(From the Sentinel, Gebo, Mont.)

In the first opening of Oklahoma to settlers in 1899, the editor of this paper was among the many seekers after fortune who made the big race one fine day in April. During his travel ing about and afterwards in camping upon his claim, he encountered much bad water, which, together with the severe heat, gave him a very severe diarrhoea which it seemed almost impossible to check, and along in June the case became so bad he expected to die. One day one of his neighbors brought him one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as a last hope. A big dose was given him while he was rolling about on the ground in great agony, and in a few minutes the dose was repeated. The good effect of the medicine was soon noticed and within an hour the patient was taking his first sound sleep for a fortnight. That one little bottle worked a complete cure, and he cannot help but feel grateful. The sea-on for bowel disorders being at hand suggests this item. For sale by Haydon's drugstore

Mrs. Stanton was flitting on the white-pillared piazza assisting the little maid of her child's sister before she went to her room for her afternoon siesta.

The long line of windows above were open to catch the first faint breath from the mountains—the breath that would be sweetness from cool lying pools of plump mint—and form filtered through the pine tops as it descends.

From the window in Ellinor Clegg's room a girl in dotted muslin made a ripple of laughter. Ellinor herself, fretted in its cambric, stood fresh linen shimmering pale as lemon slippers to wear that evening in the evening. As she paraded one of them from the window sill and stopped back to view the effect of her handiwork the face of her dressing sack caught in its buckle and sent it whirling down upon the dark brown head of a young man who was standing in the piazza below.

Miss Stanton caught a horrified look on poor Ellinor's face as she darted back and then turned her glasses on the young man who had been so unceremoniously treated.

He had had the slipper on the palm of his hand and was examining it curiously.

"What Cinderella dropped it, do you think?" asked one of the loungers, scanning the window above.

"I shall know," said the young man shortly. He had only just arrived, it seemed, but I am going to play the prince and find out."

"And marry the girl who can wear it?" they scoffed.

"Perhaps," he said. "Who knows?" And he dropped the slipper into his coat pocket and strolled away.

Ellinor had just finished rain, when Jack Elliston's voice sent her flying to the window. Her heart, in its excitement at Jack's coming, was over there considerably pursuing the ladies of Fairview hour. Ellinor, in response to an urgent behest from Jack, pressed her nose against the window pane, but could not see the occasion for the afternoon tea. As she exchanged the formalities of the hour and of travel with the guest.

"Where do you suppose Ellinor is?" asked Jack, as he had a passing glimpse of the white muslin and pink ribbons of the vanished girl. "I'll get a take it along." And he stood irresolutely under the eaves.

* * * * * * * *

"How do I look, dear Mrs. Stanton?" asked Ellinor, modestly slowly before the mirror in her room.

"As charming as Cinderella at the ball," said Mrs. Stanton, smiling. "And what made you take such a fancy to wear your lover around as a pincushion for the slippers?"

"Why, I—I don't know," faltered Ellinor. "I had planned for days that Jack would be the first to fit it into it after I had dressed. And then when I—I—I—"

"Stuck one out," cried Mrs. Stanton, with a merry laugh. "Oh, the tangled webs we weave when we first try to deceive!"

"Are you quite ready, dear?" asked Jack, as Ellinor, nodding slowly before the mirror, put the last touches to her toilet. "We shall only be just in time for the train."

"Yes, I am ready," said Ellinor, with a little sigh. "And I am glad I am to meet the child. I have always been so fond of children, and I have hoped for much comfort in this time in his apartments. I believe you think I have fallen of my senses."

"Well till you need him," murmured Mrs. Stanton, leading the way to the carriage.

Ellinor found her bad humor vanishing before the charming welcome of her hostess, and she was ashamed of the little thrill of satisfaction which crept over her when she found she was to have the seat of honor on its right.

"His mother are really in excellent health, she admitted to herself as she drew on her gloves. "His table appointments are perfect," she commented a little later on, "and he himself is all Mrs. Stanton claims for him." She confessed reluctantly as she noted his cleverness at keeping the conversation at ball rolling and the feet with which he put each one at his or her host. Even shy little Amy Grey found herself expanding a timid anecdote to say in pauses of appreciative eyes.

"I acknowledge that tennis have become a nuisance," Jack Stanhope remarked as they rose from the table, "but there is just one little one I would like to ask to drink standing before we adjourn to the library for coffee and cigarettes. It is, 'To Cinderella.'"

"Have you gone back to your fairy tale days, Jack?" asked Jo Gilbert, putting down his empty glass. "I have the story; come now, tell

Activity of a Musician's Brain.

In the course of a lecture at a conference of musicians in Dublin, Ireland, some interesting particulars and some astonishing statistics were given relatively to the amount of work accomplished by the brain and nerves in piano playing. A pianist, in view of the present state of pianoforte playing, has to cultivate the eye to see about 1,500 signs in one minute, the fingers to make about 2,000 movements and the brain to receive and understand separately the 1,500 signs while it senses 2,000 orders. A Bird That is Feared.

The cister (lica sandata) is a bird that is respected and feared throughout south Germany. It belongs to the raven tribe, and is about the size of a dove, with black and white feathers and long, pointed tail. It builds its nest in orchards, and its life is sacred. If it is seen three times in succession on the same house top in a place remote from its home it is believed to be a sure sign of death in that house. If it flies over a house where any one is ill and gives its peculiar cry the sick person is sure to die, but if it does not scream the patient may recover. It is better for the sick person if the bird does not come near.

No one could be hired to bother these birds for fear they might seek revenge, and if by chance one of them should die it is a sign of bad luck to the owner of the property where it was found. The bird is a valuable insect destroyer and in this way probably more than compensates for the fear it occasions among the farmers.

To Induce Humility in a Peacock.

If you wish to take the conceit out of a peacock pull out his tail feathers, and as soon as he finds the glory of his plumage gone he becomes the humblest, most subdued and ashamed looking bird that ever walked the earth. A peacock in full feather is so vain and conceited as sometimes to be really troublesome. Not satisfied with squalling at the top of his discordant voice and with parading up and down the walks with expanded plumage, he will attack cats, dogs and even children and has been known to seriously injure small boys or girls that were incautious enough to venture within his reach.

Plucking his tail feathers, however, causes all his courage to evaporate. He will sneak around the yard like a whipped spaniel, will keep out of sight as much as possible, and you will hear nothing of him until his plumage has again grown.

Dumas and Porthos.

Dumas, like Balzac, was fond of his own creations. Among them all he loved Porthos best. The great, strong, vain hero was a child after his own heart. One afternoon, it is related, his son found Dumas careworn, wretched, overwhelmed. "What has happened to you? Are you ill?" asked Dumas fils. "No," replied Dumas pere. "Well, what is it, then?" "I am miserable." "Why?" "This morning I killed Porthos—poor Porthos! Oh, what trouble I have had to make up my mind to do it! But there must be an end to all things. Yet when I saw him sinking beneath the rains crying, 'It is too heavy, too heavy for me!' I swear to you that I cried." And he wiped away a tear with the sleeve of his dressing gown.

A Clever Method of Stealing.

An ingenious and successful trick was played at a London flat in broad daylight. A gentleman rang the bell at 3 o'clock and inquired whether Mr. Grey was at home. "No, sir," said the janitor. "He rarely if ever comes back from the temple before 5 o'clock." "That is strange," returned the other, "since I know he has an appointment here with a Mr. Johnson at 4 o'clock." Then he went his way.

At 4 o'clock to the minute Mr. Johnson called and, giving his name, was of course allowed to wait in Mr. Grey's apartments, which he deemed of everything of "portable value" in ten minutes and then walked out, observing as he passed the porter that he could wait no longer.

Parrots Are Vegetarians.

Parrots are vegetarians. They live chiefly upon a light but nutritious diet of fruit and seeds or upon the abundant nectar of rich tropical flowers. And it is mainly for the sake of getting at their chosen food that they have developed the large and powerful bills which characterize the family. You may have perhaps noted the most tropical fruit eaters, like the hornbills and the toucans, are remarkable for the size and strength of their beaks.—Cornhill Magazine.

The Waiter's Impudence.

Mr. Waylack (at hotel)—What's that—lemonade?

Waiter—That's a finger bowl, sah.

"What's it for?"

"To wash yo' fingers after eatin', you know, sah."

"Concern yo' impudence! I don't eat with my fingers if I do come from the country. I eat with my knife, same as other folks."

Miss Barbee Coming

The date for Miss Nannie Barbee's entertainment to be given at the court House for the benefit of the Christian church has been fixed for Tuesday evening, June 30th. The Courier Journal in commenting on Miss Barbee's work says: "Miss Barbee has studied the negroes of the South, and has learned their character and mannerisms almost perfectly. Her portrayal of them in dialect was delightful, truthful and artistic. "My Mistis," "Catchin' a Chicken" and "I'm Gwine to Buy a Hou e" pictured the Southern negroes as he was in the days before the war. "The Western Woman and Her Dog" was quite a change from the other selections, but it served to show Miss Barbee's versatility."

Court News

The present term of Circuit Court was resumed on Monday after having adjourned for two weeks but very little business was transacted. The murder case against Leslie Shewmaker was called but on motion of the Commonwealth was postponed until next term of court. The juries were dismissed on Wednesday morning the commonwealth docket having been disposed of.

The following cases of the Commonwealth were tried:

Davis Hungate charged with carrying concealed a deadly weapon was found not guilty.

Ben Freeman was convicted of committing a breach of the peace and fined $15 and costs.

Jim Dennis and William Dennis were convicted of dynamiting fish and fined $10 each, but an order was en ered on motion of the Commonwealth Attorney suspending the fine until further orders from the court

R. W. Clements charged with committing a public nuisance was acquitted of the charge. This case grew out of the fact that Mr. Clements some time ago erected a tenement house and a stable in close proximity to a school on the Bardstown road, and he was indicted because the patrons of the school complained of the stable as a nuisance. The school house has since been destroyed by fire. The Commonwealth failed to make out a case against Mr. Clements who is one of the county's best citizens and the court gave the jury pre-emptory instructions to dismiss the charge.

The case against Richard Trent charged with false swearing was dismissed for want of proof.

Richard Perkins was found guilty on a breach of the peace charge and fined $5 and costs.

John Cary for using abusive language was fined $5 and Jeff Simms convicted on a similar charge was assed the same amount.

John Wilkerson charged with a breach of the peace was touched for $25 and the trimmings.

Death Of Mrs. Beam.

The news of the death of Mrs Margaret Beam at St. Joseph's Hospital in Louisville on last Monday morning came as a sad shock to her many friends and relatives in Springfield and Washington county. Mrs. Beam had been in bad health for some time, and just one week before her death she submitted to a very severe surgical operation. She gradually grew worse after the operation was performed and died at about noon on Monday last from the direct effects of peritonitis. Mrs Beam, before her marriage, was Margaret Thompson, of this place, a daughter of the late Nelson Thompson. Her mother, who survives, was a Mayes, a sister of Messrs. T. Scott, John Y. and Jim B. Mayes, of this county. There was no more popular girl who ever grew up in Springfield than Margaret Thompson and her happy and frank disposition endeared her to all with whom she was thrown in contact. In November, 1896, she was married to Mr. J. H. Beam, the prominent distiller of Early Times, Nelson county. In her new home she at once became a popular and natural leader in social circles, and was a general favorite. Her untimely death is a source of universal regret among a large circle in Nelson county as well as in her old home.

The funeral took place at Bardstown on yesterday morning and a large number of friends from this place attended.

Pleasant Occasions.

Mrs. Jimes Calhoun McElroy gave a delightful, fifech party last Friday afternoon to the visitors who are in town. The guests of honor were Mrs. M t Mayes of California, Mrs. LeRoy Denn, of Asheville, N. C., Mrs. Hirton of New Haven, Ky., and Miss Rice of Pittsburg, Pa. The others present were Mesdames Harry Thompson, Elton Green, Howard McElroy and Miss Mary Claybrooke McElroy. The company assembled in the dining-room at 2:30 and engaged in a most interesting game until 5:30. For refreshments during intermissions dainty ices were served and a bit of choice gossip was indulged in. Mrs. Green and Miss McElroy tied for the prize and it finally fell to Mrs. Green. Who all owed the honor guests to eat for it Mrs. Mayes was victorious and carried off the beautiful fan.

The men of the "Ragtime Fad," Dr. Hord, George Wharton, Garland Cunningham, Viella Spalding, Will Claybrooke, Joe Claybrooke, chaperoned by Mesdames Ben T. Head of Harrodsburg, and James C. McElroy, entertained Misses Mary Rice, of Pittsburg Pa., Annie McChord, Bettie Irvine, Jennie Claybrooke, Lydia McElroy and Esther Boulware at luncheon Monday evening at 9 o'clock. The guests were graciously received in Dr Hord's red parlor, which was converted into a perfect sylvan retreat by a profusion of palms, ferns and roses softly lighted by red candles. To strains of music from an invisible orchestra, the guests wended their way to the dining-room and here as elsewhere, the hands me hosts displayed their perfect taste. Clusters of roses in vases, and artistically seattered on the cover of Mexican drawn work, furnished the color scheme, which was carried out in the menu. One of the most pleasant features of this very happy occasion was 'A Tour of Nations," suggested by Miss Rice, a guessing contest, in which all took part. The prize, a red Bohemian glass vase was won by Mrs. McElroy and presented to Mrs Head. In conclusion Miss Rice tossed off the following toast:

"Here's to the owner of Ragtime Flat
And to all these men in one,
Here's to the women of the Bluegrass
state:
And to every mother's son."

Mr. Will Claybrooke very ungallantly responded.

"Here's to fine ice-tea
So amber and so clear,
Not so sweet as a woman's lips
But a great deal more sincere."

Patteson and Durham

The Democratic primary passed off in this county quietly last Saturday although a good vote was polled. Judge Patteson for Circuit Judge and R. L. The time fixed by section 79 is two months and payment must be made to the District Treasurer before the expiration of that time. Lightnings Curious Freak

During the heavy rainstorm of last Saturday morning, lightning struck the dwelling of Mr. John Cotton, who resides in the Murray's Run neighborhood. The electric current was conducted down the chimney and set fire to the lambrequin on the mantel piece. Members of the family were in the room at the time, and the burning lambrequin was extinguished before much damage was done. All the members of the household were indoors when the lightning played this curious prank, but none of them were injured. The house was in no way damaged.

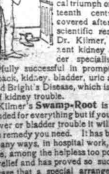
WITH A LAME BACK?
Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.



Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy. It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, kidney, bladder, uric acid troubles and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this paper and offer in this paper. Regular fifty cent and one dollar sizes for sale at all drug stores. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Washington Letter

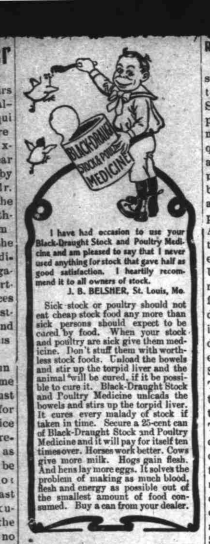
There is a decided lull in affairs in Washington this week although everyone is on the qui vive awaiting the President's return. Considerable anxiety existed for several days for fear that event would be delayed by the floods in the West but Mr. Roosevelt passed through the edge of the flooded country without delay. There are many important matters which await the President's attention. In addition to the Post office investigation, which is the most important, there are a number of offices to be filled including the assistant secretary of Commerce and Labor, a Civil Service Commissioner and others.

A somewhat remarkable coincidence occurred in the Supreme Court during the period just preceding its adjournment for the summer recess. Mr. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes was required to pass on the question as to whether a copyright could be obtained on his father's book "The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table." As there was no pecuniary interest on the part of the distinguished son, there was no impropriety in his adjudicating the case and accordingly he decided that the work could not be copyrighted as it had originally been published without copyright in serial form, in "The Atlantic Monthly." Another publication involved in the same case was Harriet Beecher Stow's "The Minister's Wooing."

The woes of the man who tries to patent a flying-machine are legion. The patent law is in considerate enough to require that an invention to be patentable must be new and useful and it is by no means easy to convince the the Patent Office officials that a flying machine is useful, however new it may be. There was a minister who applied at the Patent Office this week for a patent on a flying chariot, directions for making which he declared that he had discovered in the book of Ezekial. The would may yet learn of this scriptural air ship but it will not be through the patent office, for when the Minister of the Gospel was asked to swear that he was the original discoverer of the idea he sovght to patent he was oblized to refuse and he went away disconsolate. Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, of Washington, has given new impetus to the flying machine idea in this country with his tetrahedron kite principle but even the Doctor declines to say that he has actually solved the problem of aerial navigation and he has never applied for a patent.

Developments have not followed each other in the Post-office investigation as rapidly as was hoped, although the inspectors are still diligently at work. Three weeks ago Postmaster General Payne expected to have practically completed his report on the scandal in time for the President's return, but that will be impossible in view of the ramification. Mr. Roosevelt has already called a Cabinet meeting for Saturday and it is assumed that the Postoffice situation will be discussed at much length at that time. The inspectors are now working on the division of former Superintendent Beavers and all kinds of sensational rumors are heard, but thus far no fair have been given to the public. There is urgent demand for the reply made by Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow to the Tulloch charges. All other replies to these charges have now been published, but it is understood that Bristow's report confirms many of the details of the Tulloch indictment, and for that reason Postmaster General Payne is holding it back with a view to presenting with it a more recent report on the conditions in the Washington post office which it is hoped will make a more favorable showing.

Recent reports from Colombia regarding the Panama canal are by no means encouraging. They are to the effect that there is little prospect of the Colombians getting together and ratifying the treaty. They have an idea that the United States Treasury is overflowing with money and are inclined to regard their own necessities rather than what would constitute a fair price for the canal zone and charter. Some say, however, that President Marroquin appreciates that it would be useless to try and extort more from this country, and that, if the Congress which meets the 20th of this month does not ratify, he will raise some kind of disturbance and under the cloak of an insurrection ratify the treaty himself. This course would undoubtedly lead to a revolution immediately, but that would be immaterial to the United States. If the State Department can once secure a ratified copy of the treaty the money, $10,000 000, will be paid over at once and then work will be begun and force of arms and superior numbers relied upon to compel a respect of the rights of this country.



I have had occasion to use your Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine and am pleased to say that I never used anything for stock that gave half as good satisfaction. I heartily recommend it to all owners of stock.

L. B. BELSHER, St. Louis, Mo.

Sick stock or poultry should not eat cheap stock food any more than sick persons should expect to be cured by food. When your stock and poultry are sick give them medicine. Don't stuff them with worthless stock foods. Unload the bowels and stir up the torpid liver and the animal will be cured, if it be possible to cure it. Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine unloads the bowels and stirs up the torpid liver. It cures every malady of stock if taken in time. Secure a 25-cent can of Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine and it will pay for itself ten timesover. Horses work better. Cows give more milk. Hogs gain flesh. And hens lay more eggs. It solves the problem of making as much blood, flesh and energy as possible out of the smallest amount of food consumed. Buy a can from your dealer.

Take With A Grain Of Salt.

A farmer who doesn't live one hundred miles from the "mud slide" has a nephew from the city visiting him. The other morning he told the boy to go and salt the calf. The lad took a half gallon of salt and rubbed it all over the calf, working it into the hair. Two mules scented the salt and licked the hair off the poor calf's back. The farmer tried to catch the calf to wash it, but the calf, thinking he wanted to lick, too, jumped the fence and disappeared in Vandivier's wild lettuce patch in Payne's wood. As this patch covers many acres and the lettuce grows as tall as a man the calf in running wild in its retreat. A hunt is being organized to capture it.—Harrodsburg Herald.

GOOD LIVING

Quite often results in bad health, because what is termed "good living" is usually the gratification of the palate without reference to the nutrition of the body. When the good liver is a business man and rises from a full meal to plunge at once into work requiring mental effort the result is almost sure to be disastrous, because digestion draws upon the same nervous forces which are employed in thought. In time the stomach becomes diseased, the processes of digestion and nutrition are imperfectly performed and there is a physical breakdown.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It eliminates the effete poisonous matter which originates in the system as a consequence of imperfect digestion. It gives sound health to the whole body.

"I wish to say in the words that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has proved a great blessing to me," writes Mrs. Elmer E. Rose, of Shinnstonfery, Franklin Co. Mass. "Prior to September, 1897, I had doctored for my stomach trouble for several years, going through a course of treatment without any permanent benefit. In September, 1897, I had very sick spells and grew worse; could eat but little. I commenced in September, 1897, to take Dr. Pierce's medicine, and in a short time I could eat and work. I have gained twenty pounds in two months."

FREE. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of 21 stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for the cloth bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

A special from Columbia says William Brook, arrested in Hot Springs for counterfeiting, is in Mont Brockman. He lived at Tartar, Adair county, and married Miss Houvis to the courthouse in this place six weeks ago. The couple left immediately for the West. Brockman has been suspected since the first counterfeit bill was discovered as being implicated. There is not a doubt about Brockman being the man arrested at Hot Springs, as a dispatch was received from him to day stating that he and his wife were in jail in that city charged with passing counterfeit money.

Returned From Luzon.

Clayton Board, who has been soldiering in northern Luzon for the last two years, returned here Saturday unexpectedly to his parents and friends on a three month's furlough. He gives quite an intelligent account of affairs in the Philippines, and predicts another serious outbreak before long. He says the natives are a treacherous, unappreciative people and the meanest on earth. Asked about the "water cure" treatment administered by American soldiers he replied: "The United States soldiers are the most humane and lenient to their foes on earth and while they did practice the water cure punishment to some extent, they didn't give the negroes half enough. The people of the States have only heard one side. They don't know the provocation. They can't realize how the enemy treat their prisoners. They would hack American soldiers to pieces with bolos, cut off their arms and legs, mutilate their bodies in every conceivable manner and torture them to death." Mr. Board is now an officer in the civil government and will return to his post in September.—Harrodsburg Democrat.

A Taste For Grass.

An operation was performed recently by a surgeon on a farmer living near Norristown, Pa., and the peculiar methods pursued will go down on record as a marvel of science, if the tiller of the soil should get perfectly hale again. The man had been suffering from cancer of the stomach for many years, and considered his case hopeless until he conferred with the surgeon, who promised that an operation might cure him. Accordingly it was agreed to perform it at the farmer's home the next day. The sufferer was laid upon a table side by side with a healthy sheep. The stomach of each was cut open, and the part affected by cancer was transferred to the sheep in exchange for a good slice of its intestines. Both patients were sewed up and soon revived from the effects of the anesthetic used during the extraordinary operation. The sheep was turned loose and its master put to bed. For a week the farmer was nourished on goat's milk and after ten days was allowed to sit up in a chair, as everything was progressing favorably. The other day the proud surgeon received a letter from his patient stating that the sheep was still alive and feeding as usual, and that the only ill effects produced upon himself by the exchange is a insatiable "hankering after grass."

Bad For The Dog.

The breezes from below the tunnel mill country have wafted a good story up stream of how the tables were turned on three law-breakers. The three were fishing and had no luck. So they decided to throw just one stick of dynamite in the water and get a mess of fish. They light d the fuse and tossed it in. They had a fine retrieving dog with them and the canine, thinking it was intended that he go in and bring it out, rushed in, grabbed the stick of explosive and started to the shore with the fuse smoking. The men fled with the dog in pursuit. They jumped a fence but the dog got fastened in a crack. It still held the dynamite in its mouth when it went off. The owner couldn't even find the collar worn by his canine.—Cor. in Harrodsburg Herald.

Profitable Sheep-Raising.

Mr. Andrew Briggs, of Bloomfield, is usually fortunate in the line of sheep raising. He was in town Tuesday and reported that he is the possessor of 98 ewes. These ewes this season produced 131 lambs 99 of which for $470 64, leaving still in possession 32 lambs. From the 98 ewes he sold $74.65 worth of wool, which makes an average profit from each ewe of $5.14. The sale of the remaining thirty-two lambs will raise the average profit from each ewe to about seven dollars.—Standard.

"PARDS"

By MARY TALBOT ..... CAMPBELL

Copyright, 1898, by T. C. McClure

Montezuma, Colo., lies in the lap of the mountains at an altitude of over 10,000 feet. The town consists of a handful of houses, saloons, stores and two hotels, and when the season is at its height shelters between 200 and 300 souls, mostly miners.

"Unlucky Jack" McCormick, returning from a trip to Denver, heard the news that Jim Thompson had "skipped" the camp the week before, leaving his boy Billy to "cut his own trail."

"An' where's the kid at?" asked Jack.

"Don't know. He couldn't git no work with his weak heart. Guess he's lunkin' with the burros an' chipmunks. Need him jes' now gosh' up the county road lookin' mighty played out."

With an oath, Jack set out in pursuit of his favorite. His long strides soon took him past the Silver King, and around the next turn he saw what he sought, a half grown lad, his head bowed in the supposed solitude, the whole slight frame shaking with sobs. Jack blew a trumpet blast from his red nose and was so occupied behind his red handkerchief that he nearly passed Billy without notice.

"Hello, Jack! When did ye strike camp?"

"Jes' now, kid; but how goes it?"

"Oh, fair'ble!" Jack was still too busy to look at Billy, and the boy was fast composing himself.

"Well, kid, I'm down in the mouth, an' blamed if I ain't plum homesick for some one to keer a durn whether I live or die!"

"Set down, won't ye?" said Billy, sidling along to make room on the flat topped bowlder by the roadside. Jack McCormick doubled up his six feet of lank, loose jointed body and, with an explosive sigh, sank by the boy he meant to befriend.

"What's up, pard?" asked Billy awkwardly, drawing nearer in boyish sympathy.

"Heaven knows; I don't, kid! Guess I'm jes' a six foot baby. But I'm so lonesome I can't hardly eat nor sleep! Don't suppose you know of a body that would come an' batch with an unlucky cuss like me, do you?"

Jack felt the start the boy gave, but didn't look up.

"I could jay jes' a little for his help, cookin' the grub an' sich."

The mountains reeled before the eyes of the boy, dizzy from hunger, and a wild hope caught at his heart. With assumed carelessness he said, "Some mine, ye mean, or cows?"

"Oh, no; not necessarily. I'd like bully well to have somethin' young about to hearten me up a bit."

A gasp, immediately followed by a cough, caused Jack to glance quickly at Billy, and he saw a ghastly face in which the freckles appeared darker than ever. He lounged to put his arm about the almost fainting child, but knew with whom he had to deal.

"Jack, on the square would ye take me?"

"Bet yer boots, kid! Jest yer pa"—

"He slid out las' week. Said he'd had 'nough o' women cattle an' kids an' I was to shift for myself."

Jack acted well the surprise he didn't feel and offered a horny right hand to seal the bargain. Inwardly he was wondering how on earth he was to get the boy up the steep, rocky trail to his cabin.

"What do you weigh, Billy?"

"Bout eighty pounds."

"Well, would you do a feller a favor?"

"Cert."

"You see, I've got a bet with Bud Crow that I can tote seventy-five pounds without stoppin' from here to my cabin, an' so if you don't object I'll tote you, bein' as yer legs would wrap round me an' make it easier than walkin'."

"O. K., Jack! But jes' hones', maybe I don't weigh eighty now."

Jack rose hurriedly. Clearing his throat and stooping in front of Billy, he backed close up, reaching his hands over his shoulders, saying gayly:

"All aboard, pard, or we uns 'll be late for dinner at the mine!"

Two cold little hands took his and then clasped themselves about his neck as, with a great unlimbering, Jack arose, catching the skinny legs about his waist.

They were in the rocky road leading to the Eureka and Sunburst properties, owned by "Unlucky Jack." Billy thought the wind must be high as the world swayed before him and the sighing voice of the pines filled his ears.

As Billy's head fell a dead weight Jack caught the slipping fingers, and, stumbling on, made all possible speed up the trail. The boy's weight seemed to grow as the dizzy way led ever higher, the slide rock making the footing difficult.

One more steep turn, and the little cabin came in sight. Jack staggered on to the door, the sweat pouring from him, and dropped the inert boy upon his bunk.

Looking down at the child, the strangely gray look on his face frightened him. Shaking him, he cried: "Billy! Kid! Answer me, man!"

He seized a whisky bottle and forced a little between the boy's teeth, a faint sigh answering his effort. He rubbed both face and hands with the fiery stuff and soon had the brown eyes smiling up into his anxious blue ones.

"You jes' wait, pard," he cried blithely, "till I get some grub inside you!"

Rushing to the stove, he soon had the fire burning and water on for coffee. Bread and bacon were slung on the table, all with a great clatter and cheerfulness.

"Jack!" came a faint cry.

Turning, the man was awed by the look on the lad's face, and with one stride he had him in his arms, trying to lift him into some position easier for the poor faluting heart, over which Billy's hand was tightly clutched. Jack urged more whisky, but the boy refused.

"No, Jack, thank ye! It was a short shift with ye, pard, but—a—happy one! Hold my hand tight!"

Jack held tenderly the trembling, icy hand.

"My little ticker's runnin' down—Jack—ma—ester say it was the only trick thing about her 'Billy boy.' I allus knew I might go suddint! The doc said this place was—too near heaven for a little sinner like me, an' pa wouldn't—couldn't take me lower."

Jack, with a rough shamefacedness, kissed the boy on the brow and rubbed his hair the wrong way. The brown eyes shone with a wet comprehension, gazing up lovingly into the blue ones flooded with manly tears. The voice began more faintly, with many pauses:

"I'm allus said there wa'n't no heaven, but ma—she said there was—an' I jes' want to say that ef she's right—an' ef she's staked me out—a claim—I'll go ye halvers, Jack, old pard! So maybe ye won—more—nor yer bet—when ye helped—her Billy boy—over—the—range."

Soon after, the camp rang with the rich strike of Jack McCormick on the Eureka! It was when he sought a last resting place for his "pard" that he found the paying lead.

The Virtues of Black Teeth.

Doctors come across many cases of fragrant superstition. One who has a large practice in the foreign colonies tells of a peculiar belief he was required to combat recently.

The family he was called upon to attend were Siamese. The patient was a naturally delicate little girl of six years, and a diagnosis convinced the doctor that her present ailment was starvation. He put a few questions to the child's parents through an interpreter in regard to her teeth, which were quite black. It came out that they had been painted that color three days before, according to an old Siamese and Tonquinese custom, and that the child had been allowed to eat nothing since through fear of mastication wearing off the coloring matter, which was thought to be slightly poisonous. The doctor inquired into the virtues of coal black teeth.

"It's a disgrace to have white teeth like a dog or an elephant," was the reply.

The doctor took chances on killing the child by giving her something to eat. At last accounts she was still alive, but her teeth were jet black and will probably remain so for many moons. And the family has a new doctor.—New York Press.

An Artist's Struggles.

Professor von Herkomer, the famous painter, had such a struggle to gain a living in his early days that had it not been for his inexhaustible stock of patience and self confidence he would probably have abandoned art entirely. He sold his first picture for 2 guineas and later on earned for a short time a couple of pounds weekly for a woodcut which he supplied to a comic paper. This modest salary coming to a stop, he was at his wits' end to know what to do. He applied to a troupe of minstrels for an engagement as either player, but in vain, and then took to designing carpets. For some years he battled with poverty, achieving no success until he obtained employment on a weekly illustrated journal.—London Globe.

Political Parties.

Parties are founded on instincts and have better guides to their own humble aims than the sagacity of their leaders. They have nothing perverse in their origin, but rudely mark some real and lasting relation. We might as wisely reprove the east wind or the frost as a political party whose members for the most part could give no account of their position, but stand for the defense of those interests in which they find themselves. Our quarrel with them begins when they quit this deep natural ground at the bidding of some leader and, obeying personal considerations, throw themselves into the maintenance and defense of points nowise belonging to their system.—Emerson.

Worry

Almost Unnerved Me —Heart Pains.

Short of Breath, Faint and Languid.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nervine Cured Me.

"It has been five years since I was cured of heart trouble by your Heart Cure and Nervine, and I am just as sound as a dollar in that organ today. For several years I had been suffering with my heart. Breathing had become short and difficult at times, short, sharp pains about the heart, sometimes accompanied with fluttering would make me feel faint and languid. The least excitement or mental worry would almost unnerve me. I felt that the trouble was growing worse all the time, and after trying many remedies prescribed by physicians without obtaining relief, I was induced to give your remedies a trial. I was relieved the second day, and after taking three or four bottles all symptoms were removed and have never showed signs of returning."—REV. GEO. W. KISACOPE, Chincotague, Va.

There are many symptoms of heart disease, which so closely resemble those of more common nervous disorders as to frequently mislead the attending physician. Often in cases of heart trouble the stomach, kidneys, liver or lungs become affected. Again the symptoms may be those of weakened nerves, as tired feeling, sleeplessness, timidity, the patient is easily excitable and apt to worry without cause. If you have the least suspicion that your heart is weak study your symptoms and begin the use of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. The great [illegible] without a [illegible] delay.
